Hotel Hamilton.

The name of the magnificent hotel has been decided upon. It will be called Hotel Hamilton. The name is one that will please every stockholder and gratify the public generally. Nothing is more fitting than that the name of John C. Hamilton, who has been so industriously connected with the great enterprise, the hotel that is to be his honored name, and should be the pride of Western Kentucky. May the white walls stand for ages to commemorate the generosity, the public spirit that the devotion to his native city, that are the crowning characteristics of the most successful business man. The name is not only euphonious but it means something. May it prove the synonym of success and of genuine worth to the city!
